Heavenly Hana

Way out on the east side of the island, there's a place
Where you can go & leave your worries far behind
Far away from the confusion & the clatter of the city
You can relax from all the pressure & unwind
Listen in the evening to the cattle gently calling
The scent of flowers floats like perfume in the air
If you think that you're in Heaven
Then you're probably already there

CHORUS

Heavenly Hana, that's what they called it way back when Heavenly Hana, this must be where Heaven begins

Words like paradise & Heaven always seemed so trite to me & don't come very easy to my tongue but the choices here are few, I guess I'll go with trite but true and hope that they sound better when they're sung
I guess I'm not the first & probably won't be the last
To have such trouble finding words for such a place
All I know is every time I'm here
It puts such a smile on my face

REPEAT CHORUS

BRIDGE

If I had to paint a picture of Heaven here on earth
This is what you'd surely see
I might be headed in the other direction
But at least I've seen what Heaven can be
